The unique and appropriate way of forming the independent Uzbek statehood and national legal system is based on rich spiritual and legal foundations. The foundations of the state and law of Uzbekistan - the foundations of our national statehood - are very ancient and strong. It has a history of three thousand years. The countries that flourished in the territory of ancient Turan, Movarounnahr, Turkestan left a bright mark on the development of world culture. Our country has the state management experience of the Karakhanids, Khorezmshahs, Amir Temur and Timurid states and the Uzbek khanate, the entire national, historical, legal, spiritual practice of our people and its independent state, starting from ancient Sogdiya and Khorezm. It embodies the age-old dreams of living. Now, at the beginning of the 21st century, in the establishment of the new statehood of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the laws of global and national statehood development have been harmoniously combined[1]. The ancient history and rich culture of our country, the enormous contributions made by our ancestors who lived in this country to the development of world culture, have a significant impact on all spheres of life even now. Therefore, life itself shows that the interest of the world community is increasing as a result of applying not only the ways of our ancestors, but also their legacy to our own lives. With the honor of national independence, Uzbekistan entered the period of restoration of its spiritual and legal values, the period of fundamental changes in the economic and social spheres. The history of statehood and law of Uzbekistan is an integral part of the rich spiritual and legal heritage of the Uzbek people. This history embodies the ideas and views of several generations about law, justice and equality, governance and legislation. Due to this, the interest in national statehood, our legal system and traditions has increased tremendously in recent years[2]. Today, more than two hundred countries on the world map have their own names, and all of them have a different name for their legal system. We believe that it is a civic duty to study the Constitution, which is the basis of this system. Like all citizens with equal rights living in our independent country, believers and Muslims are working towards the well-being of their families and the well-being of their children and grandchildren. It is known that the family is the main fortress that ensures the worldly happiness of a person. In fact, in order for families to be happy and exemplary in every way, the husband and wife who form the basis of the family should know their duties and responsibilities well and fully follow them. Only then will the family be prosperous and happy, and the children will grow up well-rounded[3].

Family is a sacred and blessed place. A person is born and matures here. The family can be compared to the main but small link of the society. It is known that the family is the place where the basic foundations of education and belief are formed, covering the contents of a person's life from birth to the end of his life. It is a respectable place that respects ties of affection, humanitarian standards, and national values, and ensures that they will be passed on to future generations[4].

In fact, our people have long revered the family as a holy and blessed place, and have taken care of this fortress so that it does not suffer. After all, it is a responsible task to manage a family, to raise children into a generation worthy of the people and the country. Unfortunately, sometimes due to insufficient knowledge, experience and education in this regard, there are cases of divorce among many young people. Families are broken and innocent children are orphaned because of a flimsy excuse. If a woman is intelligent, virtuous, passionate and appreciates her husband, if the husband is calm, serious, kind, passionate about his children, his family, the family will be strong. There should be affection between the couple[5]. In our country, consistent and effective measures are being taken to strengthen the family and raise a healthy and mature generation. In particular, in the updated Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the previous chapter "Family" was renamed to "Family, children and youth", and in addition to this chapter, a separate article on youth was included. Article 76 of the newly revised Constitution states: "The family is the main link of society and it is under the protection of society and the state." The family is an incomparable and unique upbringing and spirituality, which from time immemorial makes a person mature in all aspects, forms human qualities and characteristics, defines the identity at the level of national, regional, universal and reality of existence, perfects the spirit of loyalty to national and universal values[6]. Is a center of enlightenment. Nowhere else can a person find the love and enlightenment that a family gives. At the same time, modern houses being built for young families in Uzbekistan, long-term preferential loans given to them are another confirmation of the great attention paid to the institution of the family. The family is a place that preserves the continuity of every people, nation, ensures the development of national values, gives birth to and educates a spiritually and physically perfect generation. Family is a sacred place that preserves beautiful customs, national values and traditions, and forms a unique nationality through centuries of upbringing. If the family is peaceful, the neighborhood is peaceful, society is prosperous, and the state is strong. Virtues begin in the family, move from it to the neighborhood, and permeate the society. Loyalty to the motherland, obedience to parents, mutual respect and kindness between family members are inculcated in the minds of the young generation in the family. Stabilization of the spiritual atmosphere in the family serves to strengthen the duties of parents to children, children to parents, and their responsibility to society[7]. A person's life begins with a family. Family is a source of respect, solidarity and love. Family welfare is a measure of the country's development. Family is a sacred fortress that preserves the eternity of life, passing down our centuries-old customs, traditions and values from generation to generation. For this reason, special attention is being paid to ensure the strength of families in our country, to achieve the rule of mutual kindness, harmony and friendly relations. As our great enlightened grandfathers said, education begins first of all with the family. In fact, the role of the family in raising an all-around mature, complete and perfect person is incomparable[8]. The family, which is considered to be the main center of education, is a sacred place that gives birth to a new generation that ensures the continuity of the nation, the development of national values, and educates it mentally and physically healthy. In a family with a healthy socio-economic, spiritual and cultural environment, the child's mind is filled with qualities such as goodness, goodness, kindness, humanity, honor, pride, sincerity, and honesty. lib, grows up as a person needed by the society.

May the number of happy and prosperous families increase in our country. May every family be peaceful and happy and be the basis for the prosperity and stability of our country.
